7. DESCRIPTION CT-1150

The Greenwell/Ward barn is located in on the left-hand side of Jewell road, approximately one-quarter mile from its intersection with highway 260. There is one other barn before this barn, just past the junction with 260 and Brickhouse Road. This barn was previously owned by Mr. Edwin Ward, and is now owned by a Mr. Greenwell. According to Mr. Ward, the barn is at least one hundred years old. The barn is situated on a relatively flat site. The land slopes down to the north behind the barn. The original barn measures forty by twenty-four feet and has an original sixteen foot wide shed on the south. A twelve foot wide addition was built on to the west side of the barn at a later date.

The barn is divided into five eight foot wide bays. There are two sets of double doors on both the north and south facades of the original barn and shed, and one four foot wide door centered on the gable ends. There is a double door in the southwest corner of the west addition. Concrete blocks have replaced original wooden blocks as supports. The timbers are hewn and joined via mortise and tenon with trunnels. Fully mature machine cut nails hold the timbers in place. The barn has plain vertical wall siding with hinged ventilation doors on the north and south sides, one every two feet. Shingle nailers are visible underneath the metal roof. The rafters are on four foot centers and rest on a flat false plate. The top plate is hewn and posts are joined via mortise and tenon with trunnel joints. Tier poles are peeled logs. The material used in the twelve foot wide addition to the west is circular sawn and attached with wire nails.

Concrete blocks support the frame of the sixteen foot wide shed. The shed has vertical siding also. According to the previous owner, Mr. Ward, the shed is original.

8. SIGNIFICANCE CT-1150

This barn is architecturally significant as a representative of the early nineteenth century tobacco barns in Calvert County. The original barn measurements of forty by twenty-four feet are the most common, as is the location of a shed on the south side. The barn has been expanded to the west and this traditional plan is not evident from the exterior. The cross-axial plan is also typical of the early nineteenth century.

This barn also yields information regarding agricultural history in Southern Maryland. In February 1990, a tobacco barn survey was initiated in order to study the tobacco barns of Calvert County. Until fairly recently, tobacco was the most important farm crop of the county. More acreage was devoted to its cultivation than for both of the next most extensive farm products (corn and wheat). The barns and stripping houses related to this "Tobacco Culture" are widely recognized as the most common element on the rural landscape. These structures are also the most threatened, as the market for tobacco declines. They seem to have, at present, only limited capabilities for re-use. Many barns and stripping houses now stand empty. The purpose of this survey has been to gather information and document a wide sample of these structures before they disappear from the landscape.

Historical Period theme(s): ca. 1830-; Tobacco; Agriculture
Geographical Organization: Western Shore Chesapeake Bay Calvert
Cty MD
Chronological/Developmental Period: ca. 1830-present
Resource Type(s): Tobacco Barn

The most significant change to this barn has been the addition of a twelve foot wide section to the west. Other changes include the removal of the shingle roof and its replacement with metal, and the insertion of concrete blocks underneath the frame.
